Champion Knocks Out Firpo in 2nd Round of Fight

RINGSIDE—Jack Dempsey is still the unbeaten fighting champion of the world. He defeated Luis Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Argentine Pampas and kept his hold on pugilistic leadership.

Dempsey scored a clean knockout in the second round and the fight lasted but four minutes.

The bout ended 57 seconds after the start of the furious second, when Dempsey floored the challenger with punches to the body, and when he struggled to his feet, knocked him out with a left hook and a right to the chin.

(By Associated Press.)

Ringside, Polo Grounds.—Luis Angel Firpo, daring youngster from the Argentine, rising from pugilistic obscurity to fame within a year and a half, tonight met Jack Dempsey before apparently 90,000 fight fans, to challenge his property rights to the heavyweight boxing crown of the world.

Firpo was the first to enter the ring. He was followed a moment later by Dempsey. The challenger scowled heavily at his opponent, but the champion apparently paid no attention to the South American. Firpo wore his famous checkered bathrobe of purple and yellow. His trunks were plain purple. Dempsey wore a white sweater buttoned over his shoulders.

Dempsey weighed 192½ pounds; Firpo, 216½ pounds.

trick lights on the bottom of its wings spelling the name of the taxi company.

DEMPOSEY FIRST TO ARRIVE.

Jack Dempsey was the first to arrive at the arena tonight for his battle with Luis Angel Firpo and because the detail of police that escorted him from the Riverside Drive apartment, where he spent the afternoon, brought him to the main gate, he had almost insurmountable difficulties in getting in. The crowd spied his private car when it was within a few blocks of the park and instantly a howling, yelling mob surrounded it, jumping on the running board and cheering the champion. One of the gates to the grounds was broken in forcing an entrance.

This afternoon the champion took a walk similar to the one he had this morning and played cards when he got back. His pre-bellum meal was a luscious steak and a good portion of stewed chicken.

CHALLENGER ENTERS QUIETLY.

Firpo did not arrive until some time after the champion. His body guard took him to a private gate and he entered without being detected by the crowd. He had on an overcoat tightly buttoned about his neck. He, too, said he was feeling fine and "ready to go."

As they had only a short time before going into the ring to prepare for the challenger, his handlers declined to tell what he had to eat for dinner, but Luis did not look hungry.

Jess Willard, a victim of both fighters, passed the dressing room without inquiring about either.

When the fourth bout threatened to become dreary, fans in the upper tier crowd set up a howl.

The boxers, judging from their grunts, puffing and shredded eyebrows, apparently did their best to oblige, but the crowd still remained critical.

GREAT CROWDS OUTSIDE.

At 9:30 o'clock, the police estimated that the disorderly crowds milling about the entrance were as large as that inside the arena. Those who could not get tickets and those ticket holders, who came late, poured into the grounds, as streams of waters from a bucket flowing through funnels. Up until the time for the big scrap throngs were still pouring in and Tex Rickard was going around the park trying to secure everyone he could, get a seat.

There did not seem to be a great deal of difficulty with counterfeit tickets.

FOURTH PRELIM IS TAME

Lew Gates of Harlan and Hartley Madden of the West Side, weighing 189 and 182 pounds respectively, engaged in the fourth preliminary, a 12 round affair. Neither appeared able to inflict much damage and the crowd grew restless as they paced at each other in the earlier rounds.

Firpo entered the ringside at 9:55, while the final round of the last preliminary was in progress. A spectator in the first row gave up his seat to the challenger.

Firpo's arrival caught the crowd unawares, but there were a few cheers as fans recognized his purple and gold bathrobe. A heavy stubby covered his chin.

Manager Jack Kearns was in charge of Dempsey's corner, assisted by Joe Benjamin, Pacific coast lightweight, and Jerry Luvardis, his trainer.

Hughie Garland, one of Firpo's business representatives, Horatio Lavelle and Guglielmo Fidmer were in charge of the challenger's corner. Dempsey received a deafening ovation when he was announced as "our own Jack Dempsey, champion of the world." Firpo also got a tremendous reception when he bowed to the crowd.

Johnny Gallagher of New York was named referee. He brought them to the center of the ring for instructions at 10:04 o'clock.

ROUND ONE.—Dempsey missed a left and Firpo dug a right into his body, sending him to his knees. Dempsey floored Firpo with a left hook to the chin but he was up after taking a count of one. When he got up Dempsey sent him to the floor for the second time with a hard right but he did not take the count.

Dempsey knocked him over for the third time. When he got up Jack chased him to the corner, knocked him down again. After being floored for the fourth time, Firpo knocked Dempsey through the ropes and Dempsey came back groggy. Firpo pounded Dempsey on the jaw with sledgehammer rights, bringing blood from his mouth. Firpo also was bleeding when he went to his corner.

ROUND TWO.—Firpo, bleeding and groggy, staggered in to the center of the ring. Dempsey hit him with a left hook to the chin and a right to the same spot, knocking him flat. He rolled over on his back with blood trickling from his mouth, remaining in this position while the referee swung the count over him. Dempsey, nervous, rushed over and helped pick up his fallen foe and then trotted to his corner.

WIFE NO. 2 MAY BECOME WIFE NO. 5 UNLESS WIFE NO. 3 GETS THERE FIRST

If someone took the time and trouble to call up Nat Goodwin on the outja board and mentioned the name of Willard Mack, successor to Nat as the sheik of the demimonde of many quick and easy marriages and divorces, the answer probably would be a wave of ghostly jealousy which would knock the listener for a row of copyrighted Japanese earthquakes. Due to the matrimonial upsets of Mack and two of his recent wives, Majorie Rambeau, No. 2, and Pauline Frederick, No. 3, Broadway now is wondering whether Wife No. 2 or Wife No. 3 will be Wife No. 5 as soon as Wife No. 4, Beatrice Stone, is no longer an obstacle.

Right Swing Ends First Preliminary After 58 Seconds

(By Associated Press.)

Ringside, Polo Grounds, New York.—Close to 50,000 fans had jammed their way into the Polo Grounds, while tens of thousands more swarmed in at every entrance, when the first preliminary to the Dempsey-Firpo title match was called. The opening fistieuffs brought together Leo Brown of Austria and Dan Bright of England in a six round set-to.

FIRST FIGHT ENDS QUICKLY.

The first preliminary was over before either fighter had had a chance to warm up. Dan Bright, English heavyweight, knocking out Leo Brown of Austria, in 58 seconds of the first round. A right swing to the jaw sent Brown sprawling for the count. Brown weighed 207 and Bright 208.

FIRPO PARTNER BEATEN.

Charlie Nashert, Jersey City light-heavyweight, received the judge's decision over Frank Koebele, of Brooklyn, one of Firpo's sparring mates, in the second preliminary, a four round added attraction. Koebele, battered badly about the head and body, was dropped for counts in the first and third rounds and was barely hanging on at the final bell. Both weighed 172.

VILLAGER WINS SLUGFEST

Mike Burke of Greenwich Village, battered Al Roberts of Staten Island into defeat in the third preliminary of six rounds. Roberts absorbed terrific punishment about the head and was barely able to keep his feet in the last round as, bloody and groggy, he reeled about the ring under a fusillade of blows. Burke weighed 173½ and Roberts 188.

Ring Is Scene of Activity as Hour of Battle Nears

(By Associated Press.)

Polo Grounds, New York.—Most of the lights in the stadium were twinkling their prettiest as the hour for the first preliminary approached.

The ring itself was the scene of the greatest activity. Two sombre youths, quite impressed by the seriousness of their task, dropped some great chunks of resin into the canvassed floor and then ground them to powder with their heels.

Telegraphers, flashing word of the fight around the world, busily tuned up their instruments. Movie operators posed on a platform, set atop a single pillar so as not to block the view of the spectators, adjusted their lenses and heaped their ammunition—yards of film—beside them.

Celebrities began gathering at the ringside as the hands of the great clock behind left field whirled around to 8 o'clock.

Up against the ring was Jimmy DeForest, deposed trainer of the challenger, who sent him to victory over Jess Willard in Jersey City.

Near DeForest was Jack Skelly, former pugilist who trained and seconded Jess Willard in his last combat.

The crowd became a community chorus when the first preliminary ended with a dull thud in the first round. Having tasted their first blood, the fans yelled for more.

"Melbourne papers please copy," came one cry as Leo Brown of Australia dropped quietly off to dreamland under the strong anaesthetic contained in the right fist of Dan Bright of England.

LAMENTATIONS OF SHEBA.

Newspaper men seated at the ringside, their eyes fastened on their pads, could tell the progress of the preliminaries by the groans emitted by a stout nation of no few summers seated in the front row. She apparently suffered more than the fighters, and filled in the intermissions between rounds with prolonged lamentations.

BOHEMIAN LOCKS AT RINGSIDE.

The crowd grew restless waiting for the start of the third preliminary. Greenwich Village, which contributes more boxers and free verse manufacturers than any other section of the city, was represented in the third fight by Mike Burke. He got a great hand from some bobbed haired women near the ring, who looked as if they too might have hailed from New York's Latin quarter.

Something new in sky advertising was introduced during the evening when an airplane flew over the grounds with elec-

Dad's Bark

By Monte Darrell

MR. BEEBE was excited. I saw that the instant I let him in, but he only waved a pebble at me and dashed down the hall to Dad's refuge. I groaned inwardly, because Dad's so tired that he barks worse than ever. He's trying to earn enough overtime to buy us all new Summer togs, so he keeps bringing home work from the office.

I went back to the sitting room where Ed and Gabe were studying, and little Ada petting her kitten. We could hear Mr. Beebe roaring about something, and Dad's barked replies. Ada began to cry with fright, so I had to take her right up to bed.

Both men went to the sitting room and had a scene with the boys before Mr. Beebe slammed out. Ed and Gabe were alone when I came down.

"He said we broke his parlor window," cried Ed, choking with wrath. "After we'd promised Dad to stop using our slingshots! Mr. Beebe would not believe us, but Dad did, and Dad wouldn't pay for his old window," declared Gabriel.

The window got broken Tuesday afternoon, and Monday night the boys were forbidden slingshots. Mr. Beebe's own sons were in their parlor at the time. Somebody broke the window; the shot came from our direction; hence the rumpus.

"He said his boys shouldn't speak to us nor we to them until we confessed," groaned Ed.

"Jimmy," exclaimed Gabriel, his face clearing, "I know how we can communicate."

"No written notes," I began, "Dad—"

"Whistled ones," interrupted Gabe. "There's the list of words, 60 of 'em, we made at Flo's party; words formed with letters used on the musical staff."

"Hurrah," cried Ed, "we've all got nicknames that fit, and we can whistle at each other. Let's type some more copies of that list."

That night I had stockings to mend and bread to set, and Ada to look after. Besides, I couldn't tell one note from another by ear, though I've learned to play some by note. (The little ones had another mother who went when Ada came.) But I noticed my brothers began right off to whistle queer little snatches to each other. They understood, and Ada could tell what they said, though I couldn't. The new amusement seemed to entertain Ada at first, and I was so glad. She's always poorly in the Spring.

Our boys went out in the backyard behind an evergreen Wednesday afternoon with their lists. Ed whistled something over and over. Gabe and Abram Beebe, on the other side of the fence, began looking for the new bird. Gabriel whistled, but giggled, and our neighbors spotted him.

By Friday noon I decided to take Ada out of school. Saturday she lay on the lounge while I worked, and we watched Mr. Beebe gardening with his boys. He gives them everything that costs no money. Gabe looked up, saw us, and whistled that queer message. Ada shut the window and trembled and cried so that I called our doctor. He said she had something on her mind and wouldn't give her any medicine.

I coaxed and coaxed, and then the truth came out. She'd wanted to try a slingshot; while the boys lay on the table before being destroyed she had tried "just once" and hit the Beebe window. She dared not tell at first. Now Dad would whip her if she told; he hated deception. I insisted Dad liked us, despite his bark. Then I heard a queer little snort and there he stood. "I'll take a hand in this," he barked, but he gathered her up gently. So I went to get his dinner.

That night he took Ada over to tell Mr. Beebe, then he paid for the window. It hurt Dad that Ada was less afraid of Mr. Beebe than of him. Dad was thoughtful for days. Finally he announced that we couldn't have so many togs if he worked less time; but could we be satisfied if he didn't?

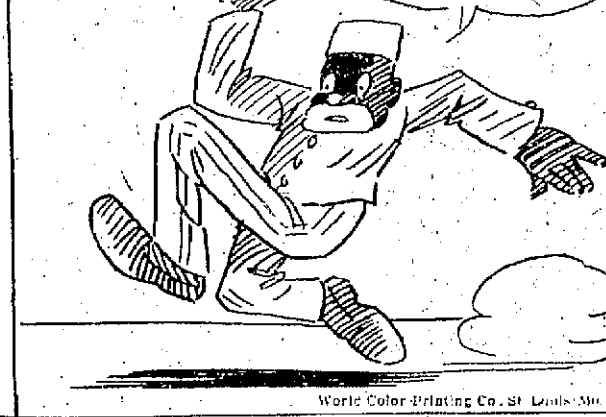

"We'd a sight rather have you, sir," flashed Ed.

"All right," barked Dad. "I'll take time to get acquainted with my family."

MC GOWAN WINS IN DANE COURT EDICT

Judge Stevens Holds Utility Plant Price, Set by State, Reasonable.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison—The town of Milton lost its latest move to avoid carrying out the order of the railroad commission in the purchase of the water, light and power plant of the McGowan Water, Light and Power plant at Milton, when Judge R. Ray Stevens of Dane county circuit court held the price of $38,500, fixed by the commission as the price to be paid for the property, is reasonable.

The town of Milton sought to have Judge Stevens overrule the action of the railroad commission, claiming the price was $10,000 higher than the property was worth. It has been a long fight between the town and the McGowan company. It started six or seven years ago when the town first voted to purchase the property, but the action was held void because of a technicality in connection with the election. On Jan. 10, 1925, the town again voted to purchase the property, but the action was nullified. On May 11, 1929, the town again voted favorably. The railroad commission was authorized to make a survey and fix the price.

In the midst of the proceedings, the town secured an injunction from Judge George Grimm, restraining the commission from proceeding. The supreme court overruled the injunction on the appeal of the McGowan company.

Then the town started its most recent action, which has been decided against it by Judge Stevens.

BATH-TUBS STILL LEAD "SHOWERS" IN LOCAL SALES

Are shower baths displacing the old fashioned tubs in the modern home bathroom? The plumbers' answer is in the higher priced dwellings the new equipment is being installed, but the old tubs are still the favorite in the average home.

Janesville plumbers say that of the 40 odd new houses erected in the city since Jan. 1, about 25 per cent are equipped with the combination shower and tub equipment.

"Tubous costing well over $6,000, one prominent plumber said, "invariably are equipped with the modern equipment, but the lower priced places still cling to the floor raised tub."

Increased cost of the shower type combined with the floor inlaid tub, is given as the reason by the dealers for the reluctance of builders to have the equipment installed in the smaller houses.

Shower attachments to the faucets, are having an exceptionally large sale. The attachments are being used in many cases where it would be impossible to have the complete outfit installed.

Although the shower may continue to grow in popularity, one dealer said, the bath tub will never be entirely displaced. The modern idea is to have a combination shower and tub lavatory.

FARMERS FLAT ON BACK FINANCIALLY

reliable nature cannot yet be procured, but they were conservatively placed at $1,000,000 Friday.

The frost attack of Thursday night was considerably more severe than that of Wednesday night, and was accompanied by an unusually low temperature for this time of the year, and the lowest for September in the memory of many.

In some places as low as 24 was reported.

At Stoughton, Thursday, a heavy frost was reported to have the remaining crop.

One hundred and 60 men from shops and stores were released for part of the day and sent into the fields to harvest what was remaining after Wednesday night's frost. The host of hurriedly recruited harvesters worked feverishly throughout the day, and in the afternoon the remaining crop was cut into the fields. They did not stop to return to their homes for food, and the women of the town gathered their kitchen forces, prepared meals and brought them to the workers in the fields.

At Orfordville, where the crop was not a stubble, Thursday night, the tobacco growers summoned as much help as could be procured. With the aid of artificial light, they labored through the night to get the tobacco from the ground and rush it into the sheds.

Whole Plants Blackened.

Dane county reports that what was left after the frost to bring it in on Thursday will in many cases be a total loss. The frost blackened entire plants and though it had been hoped that some of them might be saved for seedlings, this may not now be possible. The loss to the farmers in that district will be the heaviest in more than a decade, it is stated. The effect on the tobacco season, and the effect upon the farmers is more than usually staggering.

A rough estimate for the Orfordville district is that the loss will be 40 per cent.

Huge Fields Ruined.

The freeze that accompanied the frost in many sections, especially the lands, and the frost was more severe. No crops in the field escaped. Tobacco planted on high land was nipped less than that on the low land, but in general every plant was seriously affected by the radical frost.

The frost nipped the tobacco, but the freeze killed much of it. Huge fields of fine, leafy and good colored tobacco, the most valuable in the district, were ruined. They would have been classed as high grade binders and not a few wrappers.

Not alone on the tobacco does the heavy toll run, but the potato crop has been hit hard, the cold freezing the plants as the potatoes were reaching the last stage of growth. So severe did the cold hit the tobacco, many growers were considering plowing under the plants and not attempting to harvest the crop. The high wages demanded for labor would prevent any chance of a profit.

"I believe the growing having frozen or frost-bitten tobacco crop," stated Eber Arthur, manager here of the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco pool warehouse.

"True, the most of the damaged tobacco will go in the steaming class," he said, "but I favor immediate harvesting for the tobacco will be worth something."

"35 Per Cent. Total Loss."

At 2:30 p. m. Friday, the head office of the tobacco at Madison stated to the Gazette over the phone that about 35 percent of the total of this year's crop will be a total loss. The damage, it was stated, will run close to 50 percent of what was in the fields and perhaps more. It was said by the pool officials that about 50 percent of the crop had been harvested in the state when the first frost came on Wednesday night. The damage, it was said, varied according to locality and the ripeness of the tobacco, the ripeness of the crop, and the amount of damage to the tobacco. Crops already in the steaming class, he said, "but I favor immediate harvesting for the tobacco will be worth something."

"Such is the gamble of the farmer," declared one grower who had 10 acres of good binder tobacco still unharvested. "It costs me more than $100 an acre to raise this crop. It takes a lot of work, money and just when it seemed like I was going to realize the crop, 48 hours of bad weather cuts profit into loss. This is the last tobacco I ever plant. Dairy cows for me."

Fields of tobacco that last week attracted high bids from the buyers were a pitiful sight Friday morning, wilted and withered from the freeze. Efforts were made to locate officials of the tobacco pool at Edgerton Friday to determine losses in that section, but they were in the fields.

BELOIT MAN IS INDICTED FOR PERJURY

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago—Earle L. Hart, local manager of the B. T. H. Tobacco company, of Beloit, Wis., who in 1921 was said to have caused the indictment of his predecessor, Edwin Anderson, now of Los Angeles, Cal., today was indicted on charges of perjury and subornation of perjury on testimony of Anderson.

Hart, who also is said to have complained to federal authorities that Anderson failed properly to report his income tax is alleged by Anderson to have made the charges in an effort to prevent him from returning here to resume his old position as Chicago manager for the Yates concern.

Hart's counsel declared today that Anderson's charges were untrue and absurd.

$700,000 DROP IN 1923 VALUATION OVER LAST YEAR'S

would be more than a million, so officials are pleased that the reduction has kept as low as it has.

On the General Motors plants alone, this year's assessment represents a decrease of $1,350,000, or about 10 percent, over last year's valuation, which is assessed as real estate, and on merchandise, which is assessed as personal property. The building and land assessment of the General Motors property remained about the same as last year, so that the city itself has made up more than half of the $7,330,000 decrease on this company, which is a good showing.

Loss on Real Estate.

Nearly a half million dollars was lost on real estate this year, the remaining $200,000 on personal property. The 1923 real estate assessment was $2,165,570 while this year's is only $2,000,000.

Other losses came on horses, cattle, swine, wagons, merchandise, and manufacturers' stocks, bank stock. The only increase was on automobiles, which were assessed at $78,000; franchises, $115,000; automobiles and trucks, $135,000; all other personal property, $75,000.

More Cars.

The city lists 337 more automobiles and trucks this year than last, the figures for the two years being 1922, 1235; 1923, 1572, an average of one car to every eight people.

The comparison of the figures for two years is as follows:

The 1923 assessment shows 304 horses valued at $22,305; 116 cows at $5,040; 28 head of calves at $1,875; 199 wagons, carriages and sleighs at $7,025. On the same items in 1922, the assessments were: 300 horses at $22,240; 124 calves at $5,225; 26 cows at $3,300; and 200 wagons at $3,000.

The 1923 figures on "merchandise" are $1,215,600; 1,160,700; tobacco, 2,103,000 cases at $810,000; and New Gas Light company, $450,000.

Comparing the figures for the 1922 figures of $3,006,075 on merchandise and manufacturers' stocks; tobacco, $3,216 cases at $141,750; and New Gas Light company, $450,000.

Real Estate Figures.

Other 1923 figures are: 2,473 autos and trucks, $508,400; 15 motorcycles, $880; all other personal property, $456,345; and bank stock, $1,350,000.

The corresponding figures on the same items for 1922 are: 2,130 automobiles and trucks, $374,350; 16 motorcycles, $880; all other personal property, $456,345; and bank stock, $1,350,000.

This year's real estate figures are: Lots, $5,715,800; improvements, $12,077,800; total city property, $3,383,600. The corresponding figures for 1922 are: Lots, $5,688,165; improvements, $12,077,800; total city property, $3,383,600.

Last year's real estate figures were: Lots, $5,688,165; improvements, $12,077,800; total city property, $3,383,600. The corresponding figures for 1922 are: Lots, $5,688,165; improvements, $12,077,800; total city property, $3,383,600.

Not Smith explains the high assessment on improved farm lands is due to factories in Spring Brook, which are on property classified as farm lands.

Total is $27,000,000.

The total of the above figures for 1923 is $27,000,000, to which has been added the 1922 figures of $27,000,000, the 1923 assessments of the Janesville Electric company, $703,010, and the Wisconsin River Power company, $24,880; total city property, $19,181,706. Farm lands, $571,880; improvements, $1,111,895; total farm lands, $1,583,775.

The board of review has adjourned and the assessment rolls are now ready for the city clerk.

Hanson alleges he was induced to sign the notes, by the defendants, his half brothers, who claimed they had an interest in the estate of Hanson's deceased father.

Why the Committee?

Judge Maxfield seems to persist in a committee of investigation the duties of which are problematical and without authority of law. A grand jury may be called by a circuit judge only under certain rules laid down clearly in the statutes. A judge cannot delegate his judicial powers and such a committee is proposed by him and admitted by him also as not having any legal status, cannot swear witnesses nor hear testimony sitting as a court or a grand jury. The case wherein the testimony referred to was taken was adjourned at its close nine days. The case is not before the court. Any further investigation would be of course by necessity be in a manner an investigation of the court itself. It may be in perfect harmony with present methods for a court to investigate itself and pass decision as to the weight of testimony pro or con at the end, though it is hard to locate any precedent. How much more absurd is it for a committee with no status to be delegated to pull superheated chestnuts from the fire. That committee has the same rights as any half dozen citizens sitting around a table to discuss any public or private question—and no more. Such a committee could not draw pay for services nor could it be paid a fee as jurors. Janesville and Rock county both pay taxes for the orderly machinery of courts and government and the citizens have every reason to expect that within that machinery their rights shall be protected and conserved without the necessity of appealing to extra-judicial or extra-legal methods not conceived by lawmakers or within the accepted and established practice of courts or the prescribed functions of officials.

After Firpo, Jack Dempsey might take on Mussolini, the strongest man in Europe.

The September Frosts

Useless regret—useless because it cannot be mended—will come to all residents in the tobacco growing sections of the state over the frost damage to the tobacco crop Tuesday night. This is one of the misfortunes of the war which the farmer always faces when he raises a crop. Wind and weather, heat and cold, the elements of Nature are either friend or foe to the farmer. We shall hope that the crop which gave so great promise at the beginning of the season and up to Tuesday has not been so badly damaged that it will not bring a fair return to the grower.

A twenty year record shows that frosts have appeared regularly about this time of the year with very few exceptions. In this climate and geographical section, we are usually about a week later than Upper Wisconsin where a day earlier than our frost snow fall and greater damage was done to all crops not matured. Weather during the summer in Wisconsin has been peculiar in many ways. There have been wet and cold and dry belts. We have had an abundance of rain in this immediate vicinity but a belt running across the state from near La Crosse to Fond du Lac finds the farmer injured seriously by drought.

That accounts for the shortage in the potato crop which is far below what it was a year ago. It may be that the difference in price will make up the deficit between the number of bushels in 1922 and 1923. The aggregate value will tell the story there just as it will eventually in comparative figures on the tobacco crop so seriously hurt and contributing to such a large extent to financial loss in the state.

If the world was as interested in the farmer as it is in the prize fighter we would solve all the farmer's troubles in a day.

Where Now Is D'Annunzio?

Where now is the swashbuckling poet of passion and opera bouffe who stirred a world with his coup d'etat and stole Fiume from under the nose of the allied powers of Europe in 1919? Has he gone to bask in the sunshine of the flowers and the dillitane of Italy or is he ready to shed his blood and die several times again to the tune of his own verse for the preservation of the sacred soil of the Fiume port?

Italy is going to take, have and hold Fiume and she—or rather he—for Italy is Mussolini—expects to keep it in spite of Jugo-Slavia and all the Leagues of Nations wherever found or identified. When the poet left Fiume it was governed by a joint commission of Jugo and Italian. Neither the Jugo-Slavs nor the Italians have been satisfied with the Rapallo treaty made after D'Annunzio left and which crowned Fiume as a free port forever and its administration was placed in both nations. Neither nation ratified the treaty. A new commission has been agreed upon to fix for all time the exact status of the port. Now Mussolini has told the Serbs to hurry or he would take Fiume for his own. The Serbs are in no position to fight but if they do, other nations are likely to be drawn into a conflict and small fires run far at times. The whole affair of Fiume is another incident calling attention to the bully of Europe and what potentially there is for bloodshed when one man arises as an imitation Napoleon to wreck a continent.

The governor of Oklahoma has had much to say lately about lawlessness in his state. After reading of the 200 pardons he has granted to notorious criminals, murderers, election fraud workers, thieves and hold-up men, one wonders

WHAT TO DO WITH ALASKA

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—It is the characteristic of republics that they are inclined to honor their great men after they have passed away rather than during the term of their lives. An example of this is that in the land of the free one of the greatest things is popular criticism, usually given in an impersonal spirit, devoid of direct malice or bitterness; but when the hour comes in which a statesman passes away, the spirit of criticism gives way to kinder thoughts of achievements of the dead man.

Considered in this light, the last known policy of President Warren G. Harding is worthy of special examination. Through the members of the Cabinet who were with him on his Alaskan trip, information has been obtained concerning the plans he was working out for the improvement of affairs in Alaska. For some years Alaska has shown a tendency to decline in population and in activity. This has been so at variance with the usual course of any American jurisdiction. Mr. Harding thought it his duty to make a special trip to the great northern territory to determine what the federal government could do to improve conditions. The vigor of his investigation was in some measure responsible for the exhaustion which occurred at the end, rendering him incapable of resuming duties.

Mr. Harding was overtaken by this illness while he was engaged in considering what should be done for Alaska and was unable to complete a definite policy. He had, however, sifted down the information that he had obtained until three possible courses of reform appeared open. He died before he had made a final selection among these three courses, but his definition and grouping of the three tentative plans may be regarded as representing his last constructive work for the nation.

The primary difficulty with Alaska Mr. Harding recognized to be an excessive overlapping of authority and responsibility. He was impressed by the necessity of a better organization and especially of a centralization of administrative responsibility. The three plans he had worked out were: 1. The creation of a Secretary of Commerce Hoover, one of the few men to whom the President gave his last confidence. Which of the three the former president would have selected can never be known.

The three plans were as follows: First: Establish a federal board of commissioners for Alaska. This body would be composed of an independent government establishment, similar to the Tariff Commission, the Federal Reserve Board or the Interstate Commerce Commission. It would be under no department, but its members would be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. One of the members, at least, would be an Alaskan. This board would have all the powers of federal departments and all the activities of other departments touching Alaska would be taken from it.

Second: Select one of the three executive departments now charged with conduct of Alaskan affairs and concentrate all such affairs in that single department. The departments of the Interior of commerce and of agriculture are the three departments. This would bring about a more centralized administration of federal administrative authority in Alaska.

Third: Leave the various Alaskan responsibilities exactly where they are in the three big departments, but add to the organization of each department an additional assistant secretary. Under this assistant secretary would be placed all the activities within the department having to do with Alaska. These assistant secretaries would not have their offices in Washington, but would be stationed in Alaska and would act, to some extent, as a joint board.

The outlining of these three plans may be regarded as the last official work of President Harding. It is expected that the secretary of the three departments concerned, all of whom accompanied the president to Alaska, will bring to the attention of President Coolidge what conclusions the president had reached as the result of his Alaskan study.

Perhaps no branch of the federal service presents more flagrant cases of overlapping authority and responsibility than Alaska. This vast wilderness occupies less importance with such rapidity after it becomes American territory—especially after the gold strike in the Klondike—that methods of administering the various laws affecting it were patched up in a temporary manner. A veritable crazy quilt of administrative responsibility resulted and not until the Harding administration was an effort made to straighten out the confusion. The fact that the cabinet members accompanied the president on his trip and the fact that Mr. Coolidge has pledged himself to carry out as many of the Harding policies as possible, give reason to believe that the Alaskan problem will be solved as the result of Mr. Harding's trip and that the work that proved fatal to his health will not go to naught.

The Department of Commerce has charge of the lighthouses, the enforcement of the navigation laws, certain branches of radio control, the coast and geodetic survey and some other minor federal matters.

The department of the Interior has charge of the public lands in Alaska and enforcement of the laws of the United States. The Alaska railway was built by the Interior department and it administers that function while the Geological survey of the department is directly concerned with the Matanuska coal fields, the gold mines, the vast copper deposits and other mineral matters.

The Department of Agriculture is primarily interested through the forest service and the Biological survey. One of the queer anomalies of the tangle is that the Bureau of Education—for no good reason at all—has charge of the government herds of reindeer in Alaska. It was to straighten out this tangle that Mr. Harding went to Alaska. It was a serious problem because the overlapping responsibility and the conflict of authority, particularly between the Interior and Agriculture departments, constantly threatened uncomfortable rivalries within the official family of the president. One secretary is likely to feel that another is taking too much Alaskan authority through the bureaus of his department which touch the territorial affairs. It has been reported on several occasions that cabinet resignations were threatened because of conflict.

The famous Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which rocked the government in the Roosevelt administration was partially an outgrowth of poor governmental organization in Alaska. Gifford Pinchot was head of the forest service of the Department of Agriculture and Richard Ballinger was secretary of the Interior. To solve the Alaskan problem may be a guarantee against such controversies.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TIME.
Time is the space allotted to the day,
Wherein it moves, loves, strives and seeks
Its goal.
A gift to flesh to use, but not to control.
Man shapes it into hours for toil and play.
Some for his dreams and some to sleep away.
Some for his purse, and some to feed his soul.
But only God is Master of the whole;
When shall his last hour come, no man can say.
Time may be reckoned by the patient clock.
Or measured by the calendar by years.
And some may die by the tick of a clock
And others by their pleasures or their tears.
But however 'tis measured, no man knows
Where waits the final hour toward which he goes.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOELLER.

A criminologist thinks we ought to do more to amuse criminals. We're doing the best we can. Look at all the fun they have watching the police trying to catch them.
Germany is finding things not enough even if she didn't get her place in the sun.
Well, the first fifty weeks of work a year are the hardest.

It is reported that President Coolidge has got off just one joke in his life, which is just one more than can be credited to a whole lot of presidential and burlesque. Now, now—don't say what you're thinking.
The various sporting pages publish a "Consensus of Opinion" on the horse race just before they are run. It is published in the afternoon it would read invariably: "Oh, what a poor sucker I am."

Any time we do anything more utterly bone-headed than we have ever done before in our life which happens on an average of three times a day, we gain a spark of consolation from the fact that our intelligence is vastly superior to that of the hero of any motion picture strip ever drawn.
Every advance in the price of crude oil seems a little cruder than the one before.

Who's Who Today

PRINCE PHILIPPE, DUC D'ORLEANS.

The man who could have been king of France today—had fate so ruled—has been seriously ill and his age makes his recovery doubtful. He is Prince Philippe, Duc d'Orleans, great-grandson of Louis Philippe, the last French king. The latter was known as the "Citizen King of France" and was a descendant of Louis XIII, founder of the present Bourbon dynasty.

Prince Philippe, one of the last of his line, has been playing a king. He has called himself "pretender." This is the first time he has passed to his brother, Prince Ferdinand, and Duc d'Orleans, his event of Prince Philippe's death.

The Comte de Paris died in England Sept. 8, 1894. The prince has devoted time to soldiering, sailing, exploring, science, and even love making. His one friend Prince Leopold of Belgium, recognized as the greatest of royal lovers, was the prince's tutor at the latter game.

His soldiering included offers of his services to the Czar of Russia and other monarchs. His first affair of the heart was with Princess Marguerite but their engagement was broken when the husband of a then prominent opera singer sued for damages and named the duke as co-respondent.

The prince married Archduchess Marie Dorothea of Austria Nov. 5, 1896, but their marriage was marred early by the prince's romantic ways.
The prince offered his services to both France and England in the world war but the offers were refused.

HISTORY OF TODAY

TODAY'S EVENTS.

Centenary of the birth of Benjamin Harvey Hill, celebrated Georgia statesman.
Greetings to Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, wife of the secretary of state, on her 60th birthday anniversary.

The eyes of all followers of pugilism will be turned toward the United States today. The Department of Commerce has charge of the lighthouses, the enforcement of the navigation laws, certain branches of radio control, the coast and geodetic survey and some other minor federal matters.

The department of the Interior has charge of the public lands in Alaska and enforcement of the laws of the United States. The Alaska railway was built by the Interior department and it administers that function while the Geological survey of the department is directly concerned with the Matanuska coal fields, the gold mines, the vast copper deposits and other mineral matters.

The Department of Agriculture is primarily interested through the forest service and the Biological survey. One of the queer anomalies of the tangle is that the Bureau of Education—for no good reason at all—has charge of the government herds of reindeer in Alaska. It was to straighten out this tangle that Mr. Harding went to Alaska. It was a serious problem because the overlapping responsibility and the conflict of authority, particularly between the Interior and Agriculture departments, constantly threatened uncomfortable rivalries within the official family of the president. One secretary is likely to feel that another is taking too much Alaskan authority through the bureaus of his department which touch the territorial affairs. It has been reported on several occasions that cabinet resignations were threatened because of conflict.

The famous Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which rocked the government in the Roosevelt administration was partially an outgrowth of poor governmental organization in Alaska. Gifford Pinchot was head of the forest service of the Department of Agriculture and Richard Ballinger was secretary of the Interior. To solve the Alaskan problem may be a guarantee against such controversies.

how much this executive clemency has had to do with the disrespect for the law and for order that has been shown in Oklahoma recently.

South Dakota federation of labor has no use for a third party and its convention voted against joining any movement of the kind. That will make Uncle George Comings real mad.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Edgar's mother, Bartholomew had two nephews each named the same, sons of two brothers. One had been absent in Europe for a year and a half, and the other had been in the army. The one who had been in the army had been promoted to the rank of major and was now a successful business man. The other, who had been in Europe, had been a soldier of fortune and was now a successful business man. The one who had been in the army had been promoted to the rank of major and was now a successful business man. The other, who had been in Europe, had been a soldier of fortune and was now a successful business man.

Other means must be taken to reassure him and make him amenable to my guidance. Remembering the action of Edgar's which I had lately seen, I drew the old man's arm about my shoulder and led him back into his room. He yielded easily. He had passed the last of his acute perception and all his desire was for rest. With simple, little soothing touches, I got him to his bed and saw his head sink gratefully into his pillow. How much relieved and believing the paroxysm quite past, I was turning softly away when he reached out his hand and, grasping me by the arm, said with an authority as great as I had ever seen him display even on important occasions:

"Another log, Edgar. The fire is low. It mustn't go out. Whatever happens, it must never go out."

And he, burning up with fever. Though this drama for heat or the cheer of the leaping blaze might be regarded as one of the eccentricities of illness, it was with a strange and doubtful feeling that I turned over him—feeling which did not leave me in the watchful hour which followed. Though I had much to do, I brooded over of a more serious character than the meaning or keeping up of a fire, the sense of something lying back of this constant desire for heat would come again and again to my mind mingling with the great theme now filling my breast with turmoil and shaping out new channels for my course in life. Mystery.

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON. Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty-one and have never gone with boys, although I would like to go with them. There isn't any one that I am just crazy about, but I have heard so many girls say what a good time they have had with certain boys. It couldn't be that looks amount, or soft brush. After wiping, apply the mixture to each of the spots and let it remain on over night. Wash off in morning with hot water. Continue until the spots have disappeared. Then, twice a week, wash the face with this mixture, removing the liquid at once by rinsing with clear water. If there are large pores, wipe over each with a little alcohol.

For pimples that frequently appear with blackheads, make an ointment of two grains of beta naphthol, twenty grains of sulphur, precipitate and twenty grains of potato soap. Rub over the pimples at night.

This may be used at the same time as the blackhead mixture.

The fact that you are neat and careful of your manners is very much in your favor. Try to make your clothes pretty and in good taste. When you have a few of them, I would also suggest that you take a course in a business school where you will learn to spell, improve your general education, and I have seen at home quite a bit, taking care of things. I haven't pretty clothes. Could that be the reason that even my girl friends act queer with me?

I have some pimples and blackheads. What would be good for that? Do you see anything queer in my letter to show I am not a fool? I blame. When I am out with girls and they go for a walk I do not go with them if I am not asked. Should I take everything to heart that people tell me. Could that have anything to do with this? Please help me.

LOBBY CHURCH, GIB.

First of all, I am going to recommend something for your pimples and blackheads, because very often the reason a girl is not popular is because her complexion is bad. If she treats her complexion, and it does not bring satisfactory results in two or three months, I would advise you to consult a physician. The condition of your blood may be bad and in need of

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children, and any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

About Some Foods.

Will you tell me why it is wrong to give a little 5-year-old girl bananas? I have been giving them to her for her breakfast, and she is very healthy and in this way she will eat cereal, other fruits and vegetables. I have never found that they hurt her the least bit, though some of my friends think it quite awful. I should be glad of your opinion.

Also are butter, beans, cabbage, egg, cucumber and tomato salad, bad for a child this age? She likes them all.

Answer.

Bananas are a good food, in that they are rich in sugar and therefore nutritious. Just as sugar is a good energy food. But they are so sticky and sticky that they are more than liable to be swallowed with little mastication, and starch goes through its first process of digestion in the mouth. If you can be sure that the banana is chewed properly and not eaten in large hunks, and the child has never suffered any ill effects, I think it would be useful to let them have. Don't shower the cereal with sugar though as this would tax the digestion.

An excellent way to prepare bananas is to bake them or saturate them thoroughly in butter. Children like them this way and if cooked until well browned they are easily digested. Of course don't let them eat too many.

TREATING THE HAIR

I've given my favorite formula for a hair tonic to—well, literally thousands of my readers. It's a highly stimulating, general tonic, which should make the hair grow, come in thicker, stop dandruff and prevent premature graying—which is certainly all one can ask of a tonic. Where the hair is naturally too thin, it may not make it thicker, that's because it is so very stimulating. But more frequent shampoos, or occasional dry shampoos, will remedy such a condition.

For blonde hair: Resorcin, 10 grains. Witch Hazel, 10 ounces. For very dark hair, tar water. Buy an ounce of tar, drug stores sell it ("pitch" one man called it), put it in a jar, pour on a quart of hot water. Let cool and a day later pour off the water. Massage a little into the scalp once or twice a day, and benefit by the sun bath.

Rhubarb water is good for blonde hair, made by boiling rhubarb without sugar, pouring off the water, diluting it with the same amount of water.

Have you a good toilet?

Use it to wash and rinse the hair in. But rinse finally with clear water and dry whenever you can in the sun. Lemon juice in the rinse water will brighten blonde hair, too, and dry up dandruff. One big lemon is quite enough to use in a basin of hot water, followed by a final cold rinse.

A. M. K.—As you seem to have failed in tinting your hair, although hours before I could go to sleep.

Tanlac has banished my rheumatism, pains, backache and stomach trouble, my nerves are steady, and I go to sleep almost instantly upon retiring. I am now up and about, doing all my housework, and feeling fine in every way. Tanlac hasn't an equal.

PEACH PRICES TO CLIMB NEXT WEEK

Buy Saturday to Take Advantage of Best Prices, Advice of Commission Men.

The peach market this year is short, and the big demand has already created a great advance in wholesale prices which will be felt by the retail trade here Monday and Tuesday. "Buy your canning peaches Saturday" was the urgent plea of all grocers and even wholesalers Friday, who wish the people to know of the advance due.

"There will be a very stiff advance in peach prices soon," said officials of the Janesville-Murphy company Friday morning. "At present we are selling at old prices as we bought them some time ago. But if we were to buy peaches in Michigan now, we would pay prices much higher, and would have to charge more here. Consequently, the consumer would pay more, too. This is the condition that will exist the first of next week, when prices will go still higher and we will have to pay them as soon as our present supply is gone. One thing to those wishing to get peaches is to buy today and tomorrow."

James P. Carr, of the Carr grocery company, here, says that a few days in Michigan in the peach areas. He says that the crop does not begin to come up to last year's, and that the demand is very heavy.

"The peach season is practically over," he said. "Already exorbitant prices are asked in Chicago, and some prices will go higher here. There are enough peaches in the city now to supply a large demand, however, and if the fruit is purchased by Saturday night, the housewife will get a peach at a price which is perfect as regards quality. Prices are all the way from $2.25 to $3.50 per bushel, while in small boxes they sell for 25 and 30 cents."

Grapes Coming In.
Grapes made a good start of their season this week, and Friday morning saw them being sold in high prices in grocery stores. They are all the Concord from Michigan, and bring from 30 to 45 cents per basket in the different stores. Home-grown blue grapes are around 35 cents per bushel.

Home-grown plums are seen yet at 10 cents per quart, while the blue variety, at the close of their season, are advancing in price. Cases bring from $1.60 up, while by the dozen, they are obtainable for 12 and 15 cents.

Other fruits and vegetables in market include:
Blueberries, 20 and 35 cents; Tokay grapes, 20 cents per bushel; 18 cents; cantaloupes, all the way from 10 to 25 cents each; pears, 40 cents dozen; apples, extra fancy, 5 cents; bananas, 10 cents; oranges, 25 to 30 cents dozen; watermelons, lowest of the season, at 15 and 25 cents each; lemons, 45 cents dozen.

Head lettuce, 15 and 20 cents head; green peppers, 2 for 5 cents; red, sweet peppers, 8 and 10 cents each; carrots, 7 cents pound; celery, 5 and 10 cents; string beans, 10 cents; beets, 7 cents; pickling onions, 10 cents pound; cabbage, 4 cents pound; sweet potatoes, 4 and 5 pounds for 25 cents; home-grown tomatoes, lots of 'em, $1 per bushel; corn, 15 cents dozen; dill, 10 cents bunch; cucumbers, 60 cents hundred up to 5 and 10 cents each, depending on size; popcorn, 4 pounds 25 cents.

Banking System Begun to Handle Societies' Funds

A banking system, whereby all funds of all extra-curricular societies are handled through one organization has been inaugurated at the high school. Faculty members were told about it at a special meeting at 11:30 Wednesday morning.

J. A. Arbutnot, science teacher, will be the official banker for the school, and Miss Freda Diebler of the commercial department, will be the bookkeeper. Funds of all high school societies—Latin club, French club, Literary club, any debate organization that may be formed, Phoenix school newspaper, Girls and Boys Athletic associations, etc.—will go into this bank, although each fund will be kept separately. There will be no combining of funds into one large one. This money will be kept at a local bank, cared for by Mr. Arbutnot. Twenty-four hours after an entertainment has been given to raise money by one of these organizations, the money will have been placed in the banker's hands.

When organizations desire funds, they secure a requisition from the faculty advisor of that particular organization. Treasurer of each club has a check book, and this requisition are given as payment to the store where the goods are purchased. At the end of the month this store will send the requisition with its regular bill to the High School Bank, and payment on the regular bank check is made to the store. This plan is expected to do away with much of the confusion in handling so many funds.

TOURISTS CROWD SOUTH WISCONSIN

Out-of-State Motorists in Southern Counties in Large Numbers.

(By Associated Press.)
Madison—The heavy Wisconsin tourist travel, instead of being concentrated in northern counties, is shown by the traffic count of the state highway commission to be centered in southeastern population centers.

Complete totals for cities of Wisconsin disclose the fact that 46,741 out-of-state automobiles were in Wisconsin on August 3, the day of the count. This is interpreted to show that during the height of the tourist season approximately 250,000 out-of-state people were in Wisconsin. Estimates are that over $500,000 was expended daily by the visiting tourists.

South Predominant.
While northern counties showed large number of foreign cars in their reported counts, the southern districts predominated in totals, a fact which leads highway officials to conclude that most of the tourists were taking short week-end jaunts into Wisconsin, rather than extensive tours.

From the summer resort district of the state, Eagle River reported 630 foreign cars; Hudson, 426; Rhineland, 231; Menominee, 211; Wisconsin Rapids, 186; Wausau, 482; Williams Bay, 482; Antigo, 333. In the north, Ashland showed 123 out-of-state machines and Superior, 754. Scurgeon Bay had 169 foreign car visitors, with Chippewa Falls showing 260; West Bend had 716. Eau Claire reported 515 out-of-state cars; Fond du Lac jumped up with 1,003, while Green Bay had 623; Appleton, 323; Kaukauna, 282; La Crosse, 234; Oaklawn, 207; Manitowish, 77; and Sheboygan, 111.

508 in Janesville.
Southern counties looked with the largest showing of foreign machines. Kenosha had 2,383; Racine, 912; Madison, 1,113; Milwaukee, 3,024; Janesville, 588; Beloit, 943; Baraboo, 291; Devils Lake, 197; Kilbuck, 838; Lake

EDGERTON TO SEE BIG BAND CONTEST

Forty High School Organizations of Southern Wisconsin.

Edgerton. — Edgerton, known throughout the world of commerce as the "Tobacco City," will take its place in the musical world Sept. 29, when the city will be the rendezvous for the city and high school bands of Southern and Central Wisconsin.

On this day will be held the contests in which will be judged the first and second best bands of those competing for honors. The judging will be made by P. W. Brunkhorst, Milwaukee, and Dr. Homer Drake, Chicago, both veteran bandmasters and well known artists. A third judge is yet to be selected.

Arranged by Local Band. The contests for city and high school bands has been arranged by the Edgerton Concert band, one of the oldest musical organizations in Wisconsin, with a view to helping develop bands and music. The tournament is seen as the start of a movement in Wisconsin which it is expected may result in a state organization for the promotion of better music.

It will be a gala day in Edgerton. A holiday has been declared, stores will close and the town will give its attention to the entertainment of the members of the bands and visitors to the city drawn here by the opportunity to hear fine music. Arrangements have been made whereby the city will purchase a complete set of decorations and which will assure the town being clothed in the most splendid decorations ever seen here.

Forty bands have been invited to participate in the contests and many have already accepted. Each band will play selections of their own choosing; one a march and the other whatever type of selection they may choose. The high school bands compete in the morning and the city bands in the afternoon.

The Bower City and the Parker Park combined Whitewater City and Normal school, the Whitewater Boys, the Elkhorn Boys, the Scherer Band, Madison, Monroe, Luther Valley and Broadhead bands have all accepted. Besides being host to the bands, Edgerton will stage a parade. An idea of its magnitude may be gained from the announcement that 67 floats have already been promised.

For the entertainment of all will be the concert at the driving park in the evening by the two winning bands, which will play the march, "The White Hussars," directed by the composer, Ralph Jack, Janesville. Fireworks display will follow the concert.

Postal Meeting to Cause Cut in Service Sept. 20

Of the 45 employees of the local postoffice, 27 will attend the state postal conference-convention at Madison, Thursday, Sept. 20. Postmaster J. J. Cunningham has received authority to limit the service here to the utmost without entirely stopping it. Service will consist of the following:

The general delivery window will be open all day. One complete delivery will be made in the residence district. Two deliveries will be made in the business district. Mail will be placed in post-office boxes as usual. All mail will be dispatched as usual and an evening collection will be made from the business district. All rural mail deliveries will be made, possibly a little earlier than the usual schedule.

Carriers in the city will go on duty at 6 o'clock instead of 6:30 and 6:45, as usual. All will finish by 11:30 in order to catch the train at that time or to motor to Madison. Fare and a half for the round trip is offered by railroad companies. Business men of the city and patrons of the postoffice, especially those doing business through the mails are cordially invited to attend the meeting, according to Postmaster Cunningham, and he hopes to see such Janesville men there. Third Assistant Postmaster General Irving Glover, will be there, together with many officials from all parts of the state.

JUSTICE EXCEEDED AUTHORITY, OPINION

Madison—A justice of the peace in Crawford, who sentenced a boy to the Wisconsin Industrial School for Boys, exceeded his authority, J. E. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, held today.

He advised the board of control that a justice of the peace may not legally commit boys to penal institutions. The boy involved should be remanded to the sheriff for return to the justice of the peace, who will then transfer his case to the juvenile court, the attorney general's department held.

ROUTE HIGHWAYS AROUND MILWAUKEE

Madison—in laying out new highway improvements, the state highway commission is planning to route some trunk roads around Milwaukee in order to relieve traffic congestion in that city, according to A. H. Glynn, state chief highway engineer.

With 70,000 automobiles concentrated in Milwaukee, the traffic problem there is already a big problem, Mr. Glynn said. He explained that travelers with points other than Milwaukee as their destination should have an improved route leading them directly to the city they wish to reach without increasing the city traffic problem or cutting down their own speed. Mr. Glynn is working on plans for the proposed new routing.

"Grand to Have Your Health"

says Mrs. Jenny Evans of Detroit, Mich. Few of us appreciate our health until we lose it. Mrs. Evans worked in a factory, but owing to a weakness and pains in her back, she was forced to give up work. She says: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me well. It is grand to have your health, to feel well all the time and to go around like other women without that awful torture of female troubles." Women who are suffering from such troubles should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the tried and true medicine, now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for female ills.
